

THE MOST SPECIAL WILDLIFE
ENCOUNTERS ARE THE ONES WHEN
THE ANIMAL KNOWS YOU'RE THERE.
IT'S ACCEPTING OF YOU, TOTALLY ON ITS TERMS, IN ITS ENVIRONMENT.

| BERTIE GREGORY, PHOTOGRAPHER |

BERTIE GREGORY

BERTIE GREGORY

WILDLIFE PHOTOGRAPHER AND FILMMAKER

BERTIE GREGORY

Bertie Gregory is a wildlife filmmaker, photographer, and presenter. In July 2014, Gregory graduated in Zoology with First Class Honors from the University of Bristol. The next day, he boarded a plane to begin assisting Steve Winter in South Africa on assignment for National Geographic. Following this baptism of fire, the project evolved into a television program. Bertie's task was to film Steve as he attempted to photograph the urban leopards of Mumbai and the jungle leopards of Sri Lanka. This one hour special premiered on Nat Geo WILD in 2016.

Gregory is a National Geographic Young Explorer and was named the Scientific Exploration Society Zenith Explorer 2015. Gregory's aim was to track down and film the elusive coastal wolf on the west coast of Vancouver Island, Canada. After some very sweaty pitches, this project then became Gregory's first solo assignment for National Geographic—a 16-part weekly digital series that launched in the summer of 2016. The series, Wild_Life with Bertie Gregory, introduced a second season in 2019.

Prior to landing the job with Steve Winter, Gregory was named 'Youth Outdoor Photographer Of The Year 2012' and his first film, 'West Coast Adventure', was nominated for the Youth Award at the Wildscreen Panda Awards 2014.

WATCH

| VIDEO 1 | VIDEO 2 | VIDEO 3 |

SPEAKERS

| SPEAKERS@NATGEO.COM

| 1 202-791-2800